For example, the move to EHP 7 or EHP 8 is more like a full upgrade to enable the path to SAP HANA. Unsurprisingly there is a considerable investment on impact analysis, correction of your custom code and testing to ensure nothing has really changed and your business is uninterrupted by this technical exercise.

Upgrades, Enhancement Packs and Support Packs - Qualitest
With every new EHP release, SAP releases quarterly support pack stacks rather than their usual biannual schedule for the first year. This puts customers that need to adopt certain functionality in EHP8 in turmoil since continues changes means more risk. They want to upgrade but they are afraid of change. Don't worry. The fear is over.

Panaya Enables EHP8 Readiness - A HANA migration must have Since SAP separated bug corrections from enhancements, the decision to install a new EHP should be based on the new functionalities included on that EHP and if any of them adds value to your business. On the other hand, upgrading always implies a considerable investment on impact analysis, correction of your custom code and regression testing.
